

PACIFIC SALUKI SPECIALTY

July 16, 2011 | Surrey, British Columbia

The elements presented a challenging environment for exhibitors and Salukis alike this year. The deluge of rain that fell the night prior to the show was so heavy that four ringside canopies were completely destroyed. Undaunted, we mopped up in the morning and carried on. Exhibitors remained in great spirits, managing the liquid sunshine in all sorts of resourceful manners, but none quite as creative as Jan Phelps and Jennifer Pite who discovered that ziplock baggies make wonderful waterproof socks (almost unnoticeable, too!).

A nasty mishap forced our Sweeps judge, Gary Parks, to cancel his assignment as he was injured and the doctors had forbidden him to fly. We were fortunate that Katie Campbell of Washington State was able to replace him on very short notice. Katie did a wonderful job with our sweeps. Katie is a Basenji breeder primarily, but she is a long-time Saluki fancier (handler, sitter, auntie, etc.). I'm not sure how she managed to do it, but she maintained a professional appearance despite the unavoidable drenching we were all experiencing.

Our judge Alan Ewles embraced the weather and just got wet. He seemed to enjoy his assignment thoroughly, though his suit might not have survived. Most of the exhibitors were from the west (wet) coast, so weren't particularly perplexed. The mood under the ringside tent was jovial and the Salukis – once coaxed out of their cozy crates and ex-pens – were quite content to be with the pack.

Alan graciously offered to give a seminar on Salukis on the evening following the show. The theme was about traits – what makes a good Saluki (or not). This generated a long and lively discussion amongst those who attended, which included most of the judges at the Sighthound Extravaganza. Though the evening ended with each participant drawing his or her own conclusions, there was loads of information presented and much food for thought.

Once again, we were pleased to welcome our Saluki friends from south of the border. We appreciate their support and camaraderie. Congratulations on your successes!

Many thanks again to Georgie Paone, Margaret Coe, Don Mitchell and Marcel Nussbaumer for their continued help and support. You put the "special" in our specialty!

A sincere thanks, also, to Sandra Gahan for keeping the "house in order."
– Susan Mitchell, Show Chair
